

15-year-old girl requires urgent help

Childlife has recently been informed about a 15-year-old Lahui girl named Khuen Chaisri who has a very serious health problem. Her skin is badly inflamed with large welts and over the last year she has gradually become blind. The symptoms appear to be an allergic reaction to cosmetic products, which she would use as play make-up while at her family home.

Her symptoms became so serious that she was unable get out of bed and had to stop attending school. When her teacher visited her home to ask her why she hadn't been at school, Chaisri couldn't answer, she just cried.

Chaisri has had many visits to the local doctor, however her parents don't have enough money for her to be properly examined and treated by a specialist. Chaisri needs urgent financial assistance before her symptoms become any worse, if you are able to help in any way please contact us.
